STATE LIBRARY
AID RECEIVED

Many Improvements Are Made During Past Few Years

The Carnegie public library received a check yesterday for $506.66 from the State Board for Libraries, according to Mrs. S. W. Brennan, president of the board of trustees. This represents the final payment on a grant of $505.26 from the general library fund.

The library board decides how these grants are spent, so the projects are designed to fit the needs of the local library. Only capital expenditures are prohibited.

State aid money has been used for important improvements to the Escanaba library in the past. These improvements have included: a new lighting system on the main floor and in the children's room, draperies throughout the building, new comfortable chairs for the reading room, book cart, magazine racks, new books, Compton's encyclopedia, a set of the latest edition of the Americana, a display rack for latest books, a picture, "Once Upon A Time" for the children's room, and increases in salaries of staff members which became effective July 1, 1943; and book shelves and the painting of the children's department. A new floor covering for the children's room also has been ordered.

The grant is part of the state aid to public libraries fund set apart by the legislature for the development of Michigan libraries. The 1944 special session appropriated $3000,000 for the 1944-45 fiscal year which will help libraries hold the line under wartime conditions.

City Utilities Operations
Show Decrease Last Year

Three of Escanaba's four city utilities showed decreases in revenue during the fiscal year ending June 30 under the previous year, while the fourth, the steam utility, showed an increase, according to records in the office of City Manager George E. Bean.

There was a decline in the use of electricity and gas in the city, and a reduction in water rates brought revenue down for that department. The over-all picture generally reflected the effect on the utilities following the ending of the Escanaba ore dock project, a booming wartime project that brought fleeing prosperity to the city in 1942-43.

Since the steam utility was the only one to show an increase in revenue, that will be considered first. In a comparison of the year before the number of customers supplied by the central steam heating plant increased from 39 to 38; total revenue increased from $19,759.24 to $23,442.83; and the total pounds of steam sold went up from 25,667,200 to 27,964,700.

The growing popularity of central steam heating is shown in the recent application of the Elks lodge for extension of a city steam main to their building. The city plans to make the extension if materials and labor are available. It is anticipated they will be, which will end the necessity for installation of a new heating plant in the Elks club building. City council discussion indicates a growing conviction that central steam heating will become an increasingly important utility in the postwar era.

Although there is some slight decline in the total sale of electricity by the city, the electric utility continued to be the largest producer of revenue, as it has been in the past. The city sold a total of 8,786,176 kilowatt hours of electricity last year compared with 8,886,442 the year before. Revenue declined from a total of $271,650 to $270,325 — a little over $1,000.

While the number of electric utility customers dropped from 4,663 to 4,520, the cost to the customer per kilowatt hour sold also declined to 1.16¢—the lowest in the city's history.

It is interesting to note that while the total number of electricity users declined, the consumption of electricity held up remarkably well. This perhaps was due to the low cost per KWH, which encouraged increased use.

The declining trend in the use of utilities was noticeable in the gas department, where total revenue went down by about $2,000.

Worry Clinic

With Case Records Of A Psychologist

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE D-205: Opal Z., aged 32, is the mother of two grammar schoolers.

"I decided to take a war plant job to help my country," she proudly exclaimed.

"Besides, it paid very high wages. For six months I have been making over $50 every week. The work is easy."

"We have a share-the-ride club in our neighborhood. Two of us women ride with three men, and we all share the expenses."

"One of the men is my foreman. He is quite attractive and I liked him from the start. But the last two months, he has been riding in the back seat with me."

"When we let the other man out, we are alone for half a mile. Then he starts to hug and kiss me. I protested at first, but his kisses thrill me so much I have succumbed to him."

"Dr. Crane, my husband's kisses don't affect me this way. I don't know what to do. Should I get a divorce? But this man has a wife and I wonder if he really loves me. Besides, there are my children."

Diagnosis

During the war I have been receiving hundreds of letters from wives as well as husbands who have taken advantage of propriety in these share-the-ride clubs and who have been indulging in petting parties enroute to and from work.

The women protest at the first kiss, but they may soon succumb, like Opal today. The strange man's kisses are so much more intoxicating than those of their husbands.

This reaction is only natural, for I have repeatedly told you that the stranger's kiss has many of the elements of stagefright involved. Thus, the woman's pulse begins to pound. Her blood pressure zooms. She grows breathless and tingly all over.

In Love With Stagefright
When she kisses her husband, to whom she is accustomed, these novelty or stagefright reactions are not very evident.

The emotions of her youth or courtship period may have been in psychological cold storage for possibly 10 or 15 years.

The clandestine lover and his illicit kisses, suddenly release those former romantic emotions, and the woman becomes intoxicated.

Actually, too, she is often half shot with whiskey, for her clandestine suitor usually encourages her to stop at a tavern and have a few drinks, knowing that the alcohol will act as an anesthetic and hence dull her conscience.

Men who lack a skillful romantic technique usually fall back on alcohol as a shortcut for winning a woman. They don't even have a sense of good sportsmanship, therefore, but are the type who would shoot a sitting rabbit with a shotgun!

Patriotism Versus Cupidity

Thousands of our women who are working under the guise of patriotism, would quit immediately if it weren't for the high wages which they are getting.

Few of them would work for the $50 per month our men in service are receiving for their patriotism.

A woman with two youngsters in grammar school and a husband to look after, should have plenty to do to run her home and take care of her normal civic duties.

If she is widowed or divorced and forced to earn her living that is a different story. Thousands of homes, however, are being broken up by these foolish romances like Opal's where a man or woman or both, mistake the stagefright emotion for real love.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long 3c stamped, addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you seek personal advice or one of his psychological charts.)

FOREST FIRE LOSS $3,000

Stonington Peninsula Blaze Burns Posts And Pulpwood

Posts and pulpwood valued at $3,000 went up in smoke in a forest fire which burnt over ten acres of land on the Stonington peninsula about four miles east and a little south of Maywood, yesterday afternoon.

It is theorized that the blaze was started by a carelessly thrown cigarette.

More than 100 men, two tractors and a bulldozer, working under Forest Service direction brought the fire under control during the afternoon. Approximately 40 of the men were kept on duty over night to assure that it would not break out anew or spread.

The loss was estimated by Jim Michean, jobber, who was cutting on the George Froberg property.

Included in the men that fought the blaze was the crew from the mill at Rapid River and from the tie mill at Ensign. Fire fighters were fed army K rations last evening.

The conservation department cooperated with the forest service, sending a tractor to the scene, and also dispatching a car equipped with radio which stood by all afternoon to provide instant communication with headquarters in Escanaba which in turn contacted the forest ranger's station at Rapid River.

Law's Delay

THE effective date for Michigan's embattled automobile financial responsibility law has again been postponed for another review by the supreme court of the state.

Immediately after the state's automobile financial responsibility law, which would bar irresponsible drivers from the highways of Michigan, was passed by the legislature, Atty. General Barnard, of Detroit, who lost his first attack on the constitutionality of the act, is known as one of the best "delayers" among the legal profession of the state, as well as a highly astute politician.

Automobile financial responsibility laws are not new devices, aimed to reduce the hazards of highway traffic, for they are in force in many states.

In the meantime the people of Michigan are getting a first class lesson in "law's delay."

Revolt in Reich

THE unsuccessful attempt to assassinate Adolf Hitler confirms the recent rumors that there is a serious rift between the old-line army officers and the Nazi political leaders.

Hitler's intuition does not square with orthodox military strategy, and German army officers have been complaining that the Fuehrer's orders, to fight the enemy until death in a vain effort to hold indefensible positions, have resulted in a wasteful sacrifice of manpower.

There is every indication that the plot to kill Hitler is no product of a propagandist's dream. Radio monitors in Britain and this country were able to pick up Hitler's speech to the German people, in which he charged that "a small clique of stupid officers" had placed the bomb that exploded only a few feet from him.

Hitler's speech indicated he feared the revolt against his authority had spread throughout the army for he appealed to loyal officers and men to disobey any orders given by the opposition.

Hitler reported to the German people that ringleaders of the conspiracy had been either shot or had committed suicide. His interpretation of the affair was that the army officers were plotting to surrender to the Allies.

Succeeding days will probably reveal how widespread is the revolt within the German army. Quite likely it will be held in check, however, for the Gestapo has infiltrated into its ranks on an extensive scale, and will deal ruthlessly with any traitors to the Nazi cause.

This is apparently the long-predicted break between the Junkers military oligarchy and their Nazi political front, Adolf Hitler. The going is getting tough in Germany, and the German militarists probably reasoned that by dumping Hitler overboard they would be in a better position to sue for merciful peace terms. The militaristic Prussians would like to come out on top after peace returns so that they can begin immediately to plan for another world war.

Decentralization Seen

TRENDS toward the decentralization of industry are noted by Henry H. Helman, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men, in his Monthly Business Review.

Helman reports the postwar planning of some leading industrialists has followed one of two patterns:

First, those now having large plants engaging thousands of employees have indicated they were considering breaking up their plant facilities into smaller units. These units they would locate in the less densely populated areas, usually agricultural communities with reasonably good transportation facilities and available power supply.

Secondly, other industrialists though not planning on the decentralization of existing plant facilities are doing preliminary survey work to be prepared to take care of any expansion or any program of new postwar products in the type of unit located in a community as above described.

Industrialists are beginning to realize that there are definite advantages in locating in smaller communities, where the workers live in their own homes, costs of living are lower, and the people are happy and satisfied. Such ideal living conditions make for better labor relations in industry.

Gets On Ballot

PROPOSERS of the Wayne county home rule amendment were successful in obtaining the required number of signatures to their petitions, and consequently the proposal will appear on the Nov. 7 ballot.

The constitutional amendment concerns only Wayne county directly, but it will be decided one way or the other by the votes of all the Michigan people who go to the polls in the next election. County government in Wayne has been riddled with graft and inefficiency, and the amendment proposal represents the hopes of the civic-minded people of that county to achieve some semblance of order out of the chaos.

Voters of other counties of Michigan should at least give the good people of Wayne county an opportunity to clean up their bad political mess.

TOJO LOSES COMMAND (Detroit Free Press)

Within 48 hours after the ousting of Adm. Shimada, as chief of naval staff, Gen. Tojo was removed as head of the Japanese general staff. Apparently Tojo remains as premier.

As the first active army officer to become premier in a decade, Tojo's assumption of power completed the destruction of liberal influence in Japan begun in 1931. The militarists had the bit in their teeth. They continued a course in China that was bound to bring them into conflict with the United States and Great Britain.

After their initial bolt was shot, Japanese arms have everywhere been in retreat—except for recent inconclusive gains in China. The loss of Saipan confronts Japan, as a Tokyo announcement admits, with "an unprecedented national crisis."

The shakeups in the Japanese military and naval commands do not mean that Japan is ready for unconditional surrender but they do mean that at least its leaders recognize that their dreams of conquest are over.

World War In The Air

BY MAJOR A. P. DE SEVERSKY

The Murray subcommittee of the Senate Military Affairs Committee has just heard testimony on America's likely postwar needs in the matter of air power and aircraft production. Top spokesmen for the Navy and War Departments produced impressive figures and, more important, acknowledged the importance of aviation in terms that would have been inconceivable from such official sources a few years ago.

For those of us whose appreciation of the military role of aircraft predates the war—and is thus a product of knowledge rather than a product of sad experience—such Congressional hearings have a ring of unreality. No matter how wise the judgments being voiced, they are neutralized by the fact that we still lack an autonomous Air Department run by aeronautical experts to carry out recommendations made.

Of what avail are practical suggestions for the postwar period until we combine all our aerial activities into a single organization not dependent for its action on permissions and belated "admissions" by Army and Navy leaders who, even if they are geniuses in their own fields, are essentially amateurs in the field of aviation?

Take a specific subject raised by Under Secretary of War Patterson. The handicapping of the air forces through niggardly appropriations of funds in time of peace, he warned, "must not happen again."

But, regardless of the size of total military appropriations, who restricted the Army Air Forces' share to their niggardly size if not the War Department itself? Certainly the American people and Congress would have had no objections to a larger aviation share if our military leadership had given air forces preference in their apportionment of available funds. In every pre-Pearl Harbor War Department or Navy budget, aviation figured as an unavoidable concession to newfangled notions.

Had the Army leaders understood the function of strategic air power as a decisive factor in winning a war, and had they decided to give aviation, let us say, 60 or 70 per cent of the total appropriations, Congress could not and would not have interfered. It is unfair to Congress and the American people to make it seem, at this late date, that their niggardliness was the cause of our lack of aerial preparedness when in truth it was the strategic shortsightedness of the Army and Navy.

There is room for legitimate complaint on the inadequate scale of the total military appropriations, but the fault for the ludicrously small share assigned to air power must be put where it belongs—at the door of the surface-minded military experts. The real explanation for our aviation lag is in the fact that we did not have a separate Air Department with its own Cabinet member and its own budget, so that every scrap thrown to aviation was a reluctant gift from the Army and Navy tables.

Unless we have a separate Air Department on a basis of equality with the existing Departments, what guarantee is there that the share of funds assigned for air power in the future will be commensurate with its true role as the decisive military force? Certainly that share will be larger or than in the past, but there is no assurance that it will be large enough—or that the aircraft constructed will be of the proper kind—unless the decisions and recommendations come directly from autonomous air power leaders, without being strained through the minds of ground generals and surface admirals. Obviously, expansion in the direction of air power will mean contraction in land and sea establishments, and that can hardly be expected from admirals and generals. It must come directly from the American people through Congress.

As soon as the American people grasp this simple but all-important fact they will recognize, as all airmen do, that the various hearings and discussions are, at bottom, worthless. They all put the cart before the horse. No matter how well intended, the intelligent recommendations made by men like Patterson and Under Secretary of Navy Gates cannot be reduced to practice until air power is formally acknowledged as a legitimate strategic force, acting in its own domain, the great "air ocean."

The airplane has affected our human existence on this planet too radically to be fitted into outworn organizational patterns. Mr. Patterson indicated, rightly, that in the near future we may expect to have our country bombed from overseas through its whole length and breadth. Everyone agrees that worldwide transportation will acquire wings. Air power encompasses our entire national life. To split it among various agencies becomes ridiculous and merely lays the foundation for defeat, as the Maginot Line did in France, for the next war. The most decisive force in modern life deserves at least as much autonomy as older forces which are clearly waning in importance and are becoming, even as we watch, largely auxiliaries of air power.

Before we waste more Congressional time with hearings about postwar aviation, we should settle the primary question: Whether the time has come to give the United States an independent and autonomous Air Department.

Good Morning! By The Bugler

NO COURT HOUSE—It looks now that Delta county's hope of a new court house (if there was ever one) is like a light. It's a case of when the law fits into the picture hope fits out of the picture.

The dream of a city-county building, combining a court house a city hall—a modern building to better serve the public—has vanished. In its place is the cold realization that when the present court house falls down into its catacombs of a basement then, and only then, will the public grudgingly decide to build a new one.

Some of the governmental units have a start toward replacing these outmoded structures. Most not only have no reserves building up to finance new buildings, they have no plans for such projects. And all because local government is too timid to step out and place courageously before the people the necessity for adequately housing local government institutions.

The city of Escanaba has several school buildings which should be razed to provide space for modern buildings. The city hall building is adequate only because its interior was renovated and improved in WPA days.

Some of the township school districts have a few dollars laid by, and are planning new buildings in which to teach the coming generation. But largely there is little thought being given the growing necessity to provide modern housing for school children.

This again is the result of a pinch-meeting attitude toward local government. In some townships not even the full local tax is collected because, say township and school officials, they don't need the money. They may not need the money for this year's operating costs, but they do need it for building funds for the future.

It is a local government that is abrogating its rights while making a big noise as it lets the reins of control slip out of its hands. It is local government whining for a bigger dole—and lacking initiative to go to work.

It's a brainy day on which you buy War Bonds to lay away for a rainy day.

The finger of past experience is pointing toward bigger WPA rolls in the future. (It may be called something else but it will still be WPA.) Directors and members of welfare relief boards from Upper Peninsula counties, in recent annual meeting in Escanaba, recognize this to be true, and they have asked that postwar local welfare boards be expanded to administer state and federal relief work funds, with the work done under contract. They claim this will return authority to local government.

At the same time they adopt a resolution asking that the Michigan planning commission allocate postwar planning funds not on a matching basis, but on basis of need. This would mean outright grants to local units of government which pleaded poverty, as most of them are doing. It would mean that local units of government could make postwar plans financed entirely by the state, without chipping in a penny.

There is something fundamentally wrong in this concept of local government.

It is a local government that is abrogating its rights while making a big noise as it lets the reins of control slip out of its hands. It is local government whining for a bigger dole—and lacking initiative to go to work.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

(Lt. Col. Robert S. Allen now on active service with the Army)

Chicago—Politics is a succession of contrasts. Here are two.

Scene 1—The Congress Hall Hotel in Chicago during the Democratic Convention in 1932.

Louey Howe is lying stretched full length on the floor of his room, his collar open, belt unbuckled, an electric fan focused on him. He's gasping for breath. Beside him is a direct telephone line to Hyde Park. Louey is about to achieve his life's ambition—nominate for President the man he has served and trained.

In another hotel room down Michigan Boulevard, Sam Rayburn of Texas is leading the forces of Speaker Jack Garner. Roosevelt is ahead in the balloting, but Jim Farley, in command of the Roosevelt forces, has just reported that they are ready to bolt. He can't hold the Roosevelt delegates beyond another vote. He has to make a deal.

Farley, with Jimmy Byrnes of South Carolina, Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania, come into Louey Howe's room to report. Finally, Farley asks the others to go out, says he wants to speak to Louey alone.

"I've got to keep away from Burt Wheeler," he tells Louey. "The boss won't take him."

Senator Wheeler has toured the Northwest expecting to be the Vice Presidential candidate on a Roosevelt ticket. But on the private wire to Hyde Park, a compromise is now arranged whereby Jack Garner, not Wheeler, becomes Roosevelt's running mate in return for the votes of the Texas-California delegates.

Scene 2—Chicago, 1944. Louey Howe is dead. But Wheeler, who finally discovered that Roosevelt didn't like him, has turned morose, sour, embittered. Jim Farley, who wanted to be Vice President himself in 1940, is FDR's most active political enemy. Jimmy Byrnes now has had his own lightning rod up for Vice President. Joe Guffey has not changed a bit. And this time, instead of fighting for delegates, FDR has accepted the nomination in advance.

That is how politics changes.

SOLDIER CANDIDATES FOR CONGRESS

Democratic bigwigs in Chicago hold mixed views about the effectiveness of soldier candidates for Congress. Some soldier campaigns have clicked, others have not. Lieut. Will Rogers, Jr., in 1942 was elected to Congress from California, but recently Lieut. James Tucker, who ran for the Senate against Homer Capehart in the GOP Indiana primary, lost.

The politicians are especially watching one primary—that in Texas on Saturday—which should be a straight-across-the-boards test of a soldier candidate. It is between Congressman Richard Kleberg, part owner of the 1,250,000-acre King Ranch, and Capt. John E. Lyle, a veteran of North Africa and Italy.

The test is especially clear-cut because Congressman Kleberg did not serve in the last war and his son received a deferment as a farmer in this war, though he was trained in a military school.

Also, Kleberg has never refuted affidavits asserting that two 12-year-old page boys, Robert Jackson and Filemon Saldívar, kicked back about $40 monthly each to Kleberg's office from their Government salaries, because he had secured them the jobs. More recently, it has been shown that a 17-year-old boy, Randalett Lawrence, employed as a Capitol usher, kicked back $58 a month to Kleberg.

NOTE—Congressman Kleberg's family migrated from Germany. There is an educational foundation in Prussia which was established by his ancestors to educate members of the Kleberg family.

CONVENTION CHAFF

Mayor Ed Kelly really rolled out the red carpet for the Democrats. He scheduled entertainments, dinners, parties, dances, has been running busses from all the hotels to and from the convention, with special busses carrying Democrats to the Stadium. (Rather different from what he did for the Reps) . . . Hollywood talent, which steered clear of the Republican gathering, turned out in force for the Democratic show . . . Organized labor representatives have been more in evidence at this convention than at any in history, with CIO Political Action Committee members in the vanguard . . . Chicago Sewer Commissioner Tom Gerry vigorously denies having turned on the steam heat during the GOP convention to make his political opponents perspire, but admits he's gotten lots of nasty Republican mail, anyhow . . . Boss Kelly denies that his State has ever taken a penny from the Democratic National Committee, says that, on the contrary, it has donated about a quarter million to the Democratic war chest . . .

One news man, remembering difficulties getting elevators to stop in the Stevens Hotel during the Republican convention, sent a wire to the Democratic National Committee reserving an elevator for 12:30 noon on the second day of the convention . . . Charlie Michelson, the Democratic party "ghost," has been here breaking in his vigorous young successor, Paul Porter, newest Roosevelt tub-thumper . . . Senator Barkley's backers now wish he had never made that anti-FDR speech opposing the veto of the tax bill. They're afraid every Republican campaigner will read it over and over again.

NEED PICKERS FOR BEAN CROP

About 75 More Sought To Aid In Harvest For Local Cannery

There is immediate need in Delta county for the registration of about 75 persons 12 years or older to help with the harvesting of 50 acres of beans in the county this summer. It was reported yesterday by Bradford Loveland, Delta county labor assistant.

Registrations will be taken between now and Wednesday next week at the office of the county agricultural agent at the court house.

So far about 125 persons, mostly teen-age youngsters, have registered for picking, while a total of 265 will be needed to harvest the 50 acres of beans on about 25 farms in the county. The beans are being raised for a local cannery.

The pickers will be paid 2 cents a pound for green beans, 1½ cents for wax beans. There is the difference in price because the green beans are more difficult to see and pick because of their color against the green foliage of the plant. Transportation to and from the bean fields will be provided. Only requirement is that pickers must be registered, must be 12 or over, and if they are children they must have the written consent of their parents before they will be permitted in the fields.

Picking is scheduled to start about the end of next week. Altogether each field will have to be picked over about four times as the beans ripen during the summer. Most of the bean plots on the farms are not large in area, the largest being about five acres.

Adult pickers will be welcomed, but they also must register before they can be assigned for work. They will be paid the same rate as for children.

AAA MEETINGS TO END TODAY

U. P. Conference Is Held
At Court House
In Escanaba

A series of Agricultural Adjustment Administration meetings attended by about 60 persons, county committee men and office staffs from 15 Upper Peninsula counties, is scheduled to end here today with an instruction meeting for the office staff members. The conference of committeemen concluded yesterday.

Representing the state committee were Maurice A. Doan, Lansing, chairman; Clarence Swanelbeck, Fenton, and Charles Bonline, Cassopolis, members. Staff members of the state committee at the conference are Franklin Page, in charge of administration, Harry Fox, program operations officer, and Earl Miller, statistician.

At the meetings of committee men there was a general discussion of methods to encourage better farm conservation practices, and the annual check of conservation performance to determine to what extent conservation practices have been performed.

There was also a discussion of potato marketing problems expected to arise this coming fall, and of postwar agricultural problems, with particular emphasis on marketing.

About 40 county committeemen were present for the sessions. Some 20 staff members of the county AAA offices also are present and will hold their final session this morning, when they will participate in an instruction session designed to improve working methods.

Three thousand tanks and 90,000 other types of motor vehicles, including tank destroyers, trucks and jeeps, were sent to Allied forces during the first three months of 1944.

PLAN SCENIC HIGHWAY
Houghton—Major postwar projects for the development of Keweenaw to include an airport at Copper Harbor and the construction of a scenic highway which will open up the tip of the peninsula, were outlined this morning by Clement Veale, Keweenaw county highway engineer.

A survey being made for the proposed airport on the Westcoast farm south of the school house and within the limits of Copper Harbor. The running of the boundaries, Mr. Veale states, has disclosed the area is larger than was first anticipated and will have sufficient acreage for a Class A port. The project has been approved by the State Aeronautics board and the Keweenaw county board of supervisors.

NO SHERIFF'S VACANCY
Ironwood—There is no vacancy in the office of sheriff of Gogebic county as a result of the induction of Sheriff Arthur Pertile into the armed forces. Circuit Judge T. J. Landers held in an opinion dismissing quo warranto proceedings brought by Prosecutor B. E. Larson, at the request of the county board, to determine Mrs. Pertile's right to hold the office of undersheriff.

The court's opinion held that there could be no question of the sheriff's right to appoint an undersheriff or to revoke such an appointment and that the only question for decision was whether Pertile's induction created a vacancy in the office of sheriff.

The court found that while this question has never been before the Michigan supreme court, supreme courts of several other states have held that induction of a public official into the armed forces does not create a vacancy in his office, the court also pointed out that three attorney generals of Michigan have ruled that induction does not create a vacancy.

Collision With
LS&I Unit

Ishpeming.—A switch engine of the Chicago and North Western railway was derailed near the Holmes mine about 1 Wednesday afternoon, following a collision, three-quarters of a mile away, with an L. S. and I. switch engine. The locomotive was considerably damaged. None was hurt.

According to some members of the train crew of the L. S. and I., the North Western engine was pulling three gondolas into the pulpwood landing near the Hercules Powder company the L. S. and I. was bringing 20 loaded ore cars out from the Tilden pit. They met on the grade at "Sweet Home", a location near National Mine.

The engines came together on a curve and there was no time to prevent the collision. The crew of the North Western engine jumped and all but the engineer Jack Peterson, of the L. S. and I. engine leaped. He braced himself when he saw it was too late to jump, and escaped unhurt.

The North Western engine, apparently thrown in reverse, kept the tracks after the collision and rolled backward toward Ishpeming, gaining speed as it progressed. There is a relatively sharp curve at the western end of the Section 16-Holmes mine which it failed to make. It toppled over on its side into some soft earth.

man of the commission, who stressed that this was an unanimous vote of the commission following a study of charters in other communities and of trends in progressive municipal administration.

The council would be composed of seven members, elected at large. They would not serve, however, as supervisors. Members of the county board would be chosen separately, but elected at large.

WILL YOU BE THE NEXT GRAVEDIGGER?

Don't say "NO" until you read this —

SURE YOU KNOW all about forest and range fires. How they destroy timber, which is a critical war material, and feed for cattle and sheep. How they rob us of precious man-hours—nearly eight million every year. How they cripple supplies of water that are vital for electric power and irrigation.

"So what?" you ask, "What can I do?"
YOU can do more than anyone else because it's folks like you—good, honest, fighting American citizens—who start the most forest and range fires.

Sounds incredible, doesn't it?
But here are the facts: Careless Americans last year started more forest fires than lightning, saboteurs, and incendiaries put together.

We can't let it happen again this year. So when we are in or near forests, farm woodlands, brush, and grass—remember: WE are the key men and women in this fight to protect the home front, and we mustn't let Our Carelessness be the Enemy's Secret Weapon.

ATTENTION, BRUSH BURNERS!

More than 6 million acres are burned, yearly, because of YOUR careless use of fire in clearing plow land and burning logging and other slash and debris. Do your part this year.

Remember:

1. Don't burn without a permit from a ranger or fire warden.
2. Don't burn during unusually hot, dry, or windy weather.
3. Scrape a trail or "plow around" areas to be burned.
4. Have help handy till the last spark is dead.

REMEMBER THESE RULES:

- Crush out your smoke
- Draw your campfire—then bury it
- Break your burned match

IF YOU BURN SLASH
First—get a permit
Last—kill every spark

WAR PROJECTSPlanning Committee and Commission Discuss
Eight Items

Eight major projects were considered for Gladstone's post-war program at a special meeting of the city commission and post-war planning committee called Thursday night by Mayor August Olsson in response to a request for a report on the program by the Federal Works administration.

No action was taken at the joint session regarding the order in which the projects should be undertaken, and it was decided to leave this decision in the hands of the planning committee, according to acting City Manager H. J. Hendrickson.

Projects which were discussed at the meeting were as follows:

1. Highways, roads and sidewalks. It was decided that there should be a general improvement program in regard to these items, including concrete and gravel surfacing throughout the entire city.

2. Airport facilities. Discussion regarding the airport, concerned the old Delta county airport, located on the bluff south of the city.

3. Sewer, water and sanitation facilities. The proposed program to be carried on following the war includes erection of storm sewers, extension of water mains and the addition of sanitary sewers.

4. Schools. A modernization program calling for an expenditure of approximately $5,000 which would consist of putting a concrete surface on the court between the junior and senior high school buildings, and alterations to the gymnasium and shower rooms.

5. Veterans hospital. The committee is of the opinion that agitation for a veterans hospital, which was instigated prior to the war, should be resumed as a part of the post-war program and the need for it should be stressed in the report to the Federal Works administration.

6. Memorial building. This building would be dedicated to the veterans of both world wars and would include facilities for a recreation center and a possible hotel site.

7. Parks and playgrounds. The program would include improvements in the breakwater and boat harbor, increasing facilities at parks and playgrounds throughout the city, and lighting the lake shore park area with boulevard lights from 9th and Montana streets to 13th and Lake Shore at the edge of the tourist park.

8. Erection of a vault and chapel at Fernwood cemetery. The possibility of the construction of a filtration plant was discussed also, but no action will be taken regarding it until a survey regarding the need and expense of building and operating such a plant has been completed.

Shoreline Of Indian
Lake Being Treated

The annual shoreline treatment of Indian Lake with chemicals to kill snails has begun and completion of the task will probably be this week. According to E. T. King, Indian State Park Superintendent, there has been little trouble this year with the parasites from the snails causing an itching sensation on the bodies of swimmers.

A device invented by one of the workers on the job last year is being used successfully in spraying the copper-sulphide into the water. This is the third year the state stream control department has treated the lake shore that lies in the park.

Spraying will be done free of charge along the shore in front of cottages provided the owners will pay the cost of the chemical, King said.

LOCAL SOLDIERS
MEET IN RAIN

Dugas, Nelson, Kelly
And Hentschell Meet
In England

One rainy day on a road somewhere in England where troops were moving, the confusion of traffic brought four Manistique boys together. Pfc. Ted J. Dugas and Pvt. Walter Nelson were doing M. P. duty directing traffic in the rain when Lieut. William Hentschell came along in the procession of moving vehicles. The three hadn't seen each other since induction which in the case of all had been three years.

While they were discussing the prospects of getting back home to their wives and setting down and when the rain had thoroughly drenched all three, Lieut. Col. John Kelly was moved into their little gathering by the movement of traffic. Kelly and Hentschell had met before but what was new to Hentschell as well as the others was that Kelly had been made the father of an eight pound baby. He had just received the cablegram.

After cigars had been passed around and discussion finally went on to other subjects, the group learned that Kelly had received a knee injury while playing football and had been laid up for about two weeks. Kelly hopes if it is at all possible to be back playing football again in the fall. Dugas in his letter says, "The boys' theme song in this vicinity seems to be, 'I'll Be Home For Christmas.'"

"The grotesque confab ended," he writes, "with a considerable amount of hand shaking and a promise of meeting each other in the 'city of Destruction,' Berlin."

Lloyd Edwards, who died on June 2, from wounds received in action in Italy. We especially want to thank Pastor P. S. Nestander for his comforting words. The memory of these acts of kindness will always remain with us.

RATION BOARD IS ORGANIZED

Three Panels Are Set Up
To Take Care Of Applications

Ration board clerk George Mathews has appointed the 18 members of the local ration board under the chairmanship of W. G. Stephens to three separate panels. The mileage panel is the largest with nine members. Three members are on the fuel oil and stove panel and the remaining four are in the food and miscellaneous group.

The mileage panel is scheduled to meet three days of the week. The other two panels will meet on the alternate days, according to Mathews so there will be one panel in session each day. In this way it is possible to give the public the best possible service on applications.

Those appointed to the mileage panel are: Carl Carlson, R. J. Rosner, Maurita Carlson, Neil Reese, Alphonse Verschure, Herbert K. Peterson, John Herle, Harold Plichta, and Isaac Pawley. Fuel oil and stove applications will be handled by Walter Ottosen, Alvin Nelson, and Hugh Kennedy.

Keith Bundy, Mrs. Max Osterhout, Mrs. Alex Cooper, and Walter Burns are the appointees to the food and miscellaneous panel.

More members are to be appointed as soon as possible to increase the size of all three panels. Mathews concluded.

In Memoriam
In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Josephine Beauchamp, who passed away one year ago today, July 22, 1943.
A loving mother true and kind,
No friends like her on earth will we find.
A year ago, God called her, it was His will,
But in our hearts she lingers still.
For all of us she did her best,
God grant her sweet eternal rest.
Sadly missed by HER FOURTEEN CHILDREN.

The Roving Reporter
He says it is actually better in his job not to speak flawless German, for then the German officers would think he was a German turned American and would be so contemptuous they wouldn't talk to him.
Another remarkable character is Pfc. Ivan Sanders. Sanders is the "Mister Fixit" of the Ninth Division. His actual job is that of electrician, but his native knack for fixing things has led him into a sort of haloed status that keeps him working like a dog 24 hours a day, doing things for other people.
No matter what gets out of fix, Sanders can fix it. Without previous experience he now repairs fountain pens, radios, electric razors, typewriters, broken knives, stoves and watches. He has become an institution. Everybody from the Commanding General on down depends on him and yells for him whenever anything goes wrong.
There is just one thing about Sanders. Nobody can get him to clean up. He is a sight to behold. Even the commanding general just threw up his hands about a year ago and gave up. When distinguished visitors come, they try to hide Sanders.
But the funny part about Sanders' deplorable condition is that he is eager to be clean. They just never give him time to wash. They keep him too busy fixing things.
In civil life Sanders was an auto mechanic. He comes from Vinton, Ia. After the war he guesses he will set up another auto repair shop. He figures there will be enough veterans with cars to keep him busy.
Another unusual thing about Sanders is that he doesn't have to be over here at all. He is 43, and he has had three chances to go home. And do you know why he turned them down? It's because he's so conscientious he figures they couldn't get anybody else to do his work properly.
Small-world stuff:
One evening I dropped past an ack-ack battery I know, and a Red Cross man who served in this brigade came over and introduced himself.
He said look vaguely familiar, but I couldn't have told you who he was. And no wonder—it had been 21 years since I'd seen him.
His name was Byron Wallace. He was a freshman at Indiana University when I was a senior. He belonged to the Delta Upsilon Fraternity, and lived just across the alley from us. His home then was at Washington, Ind.
Ever since college he has been in recreational and physical education work—in New York's Bowery in Los Angeles, in Pittsburgh. And now in Normandy. He came ashore on D-Plus-One. He thinks he's going to like it here all right.

Wipe lamp shades with a damp, sudsy cloth, then with a cloth dampened in clean water, and finally completely dry. Work fast and make sure cloths are not too wet.

ISADORE CYR DIES FRIDAY

Two Year Illness Fatal To Prominent Local Merchant

Isadore Cyr, 74, well known Escanaba merchant, died at 9:45 o'clock Friday night at his home, 309 South Ninth street, following an illness of two years. Mr. Cyr suffered from heart trouble.

He was born at New Richmond, Quebec, Canada, and was married to May Roberge, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Roberge, on May 3, 1897. Since 1905 he had made his home in Escanaba.

He operated a general store at Ford River Switch, then operated a store in Alger county, serving the Cleveland-Cliffs location before going into business in this city. In 1910 he purchased the St. Jacques grocery store, located at the corner of Second avenue and South Ninth street, and operated it until his health failed.

Mr. Cyr was a member of the congregation of St. Anne's Catholic church, the Catholic Order of Foresters and the Holy Name society.

Survivors include his wife, two sons, a brother and two sisters. The sons are Guy C. Cyr of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Harry J. Cyr of Neenah, Wis. The brother is William Cyr of Superior, Wis., and the sisters are Mrs. Henry De Montigny of Beloit, Wis., and Mrs. John LeBlanc of Cap Noll, Quebec, Canada.

The body was taken to the Alto funeral home to be prepared for burial but funeral arrangements have not been completed.

ed that "by order of the commander of the army group of resistance" he was empowered to state that although Col. Count Claus Von Stauffenberg, the man who planted the bomb that almost killed Hitler, had paid with his life, this was only "the first blow," and declared:

"Let Hitler know this much for certain—there is more than one Stauffenberg. Stauffenbergs are here in the thousands."

He admitted the "initial action attempt against Hitler's life has failed," but insisted, "the general action continues. We German officers are waging a battle against Hitler and his clique relentlessly and unhesitatingly and shall fight until this criminal regime has been finally exterminated."

"It is not true that the revolt and resistance movement has collapsed."

"German officers and soldiers should stand together now and wipe out the rotten Gestapo system and the Nazi clique who are leading Germany to inevitable ruin and disaster. Now is the time to act swiftly and energetically."

The speaker was suddenly cut off. Whether he was actually broadcasting from Frankfurt or from an underground station posing as Frankfurt was uncertain, but the Associated Press listener in London, who often has heard the Frankfurt station, said it sounded authentic. There was an anti-Nazi broadcast on the same wave-length Friday about the same time.

Failure of the plot in its initial stages appeared evident from the repeated Nazi broadcasts throughout Friday and Friday night, and from Swiss reports that Nazi newspapers still were arriving aboard trains that were on normal schedule.

Plot Nipped In Time
Other quarters, however, confirmed that there still was at least some life in the uprising which the Nazi broadcasts contended had been put down speedily and ruthlessly.

Normal communication between Germany and Sweden was cut for long periods, and telephone calls from Spain were refused. Barcelona reported the usual German mail and passenger plane did not arrive Friday. Swiss reports said there was unrest in the navy at Kiel and Stettin but no word of mutinies.

The actual situation inside Germany remained hidden or muddled by the Nazi control of communications, but the Nazi military radio said the plotters who failed to kill Hitler had tried simultaneously to seize government offices in Berlin, being frustrated only in the nick of time.

Minister Takes Credit
The shaken Nazi regime in broadcasts to the world asserted that it had mercilessly suppressed the revolt of the generals and Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels was credited with having himself frustrated the attempt to take over the government quarters in Berlin.

Goebbels was tipped off and was able to halt an army battalion marching on the capital buildings under forged orders stating that Hitler had been killed and that the high command was taking over control of the nation, the military radio said in a broadcast purporting to give further details of the sensational revolt.

The official Nazi version was that the conspiracy was cleaned up within a period of six hours after the bomb exploded at Hitler's side, but there appeared in the German accounts frequent hints that the plot was widespread the instigation of the chief executive. This year, the president had said he would vote personally for Wallace if he were a convention delegate, but that he likewise thought Truman — or Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas — would add "real strength" to the ticket that will oppose the Republicans Thomas E. Dewey and John W. Bricker.

Democrats took the weak White House endorsement of Wallace as their cue. National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan, himself a Missourian, was credited by convention delegates with engineering the Truman victory.

Boosted By Pendergast
Twenty-two years ago, the Missourian went from farming into politics. Thomas J. Pendergast, the Kansas City political boss who served a term in Leavenworth Penitentiary on an income tax charge, put him in a county judgeship.

A dozen years later Pendergast sponsored him for the Senate and Truman won. But in his first term he remained a relatively obscure figure.

After the Pendergast machine collapsed, he won reelection on his own, but it was not until he sponsored legislation for investigation of defense contracts, got a committee appointed, and reports billions of dollars of waste that Truman became a personality of national stature.

In his career—climaxing victory tonight, Truman told the convention: "You don't know how very much I appreciate this very great honor which has come to the great state of Missouri."

"There is also connected with it a great responsibility which I am perfectly willing to assume. 'I expect to continue the effort which I have been making as senator to help shorten the war and win the peace under our great leader Roosevelt."

"I accept the honor with all the humility that a citizen of the United States can assume in this position."

Bankhead Starts Swing
Truman still did not have a clear cut majority the first time through the second roll call of states, but victory was just barely outside his grasp. Some states already had shifted to him and the Truman drive was all set to move down a host of favorite son candidates.

Then, Senator John Bankhead of Alabama, although he had announced he was in the race to stay, gained recognition.

"I desire to recall my name," he told an applauding audience. Alabama would give 22 votes to Truman, 2 to Wallace, he said. That really was the spark which ignited the tinder. It put nearly and still alive. Deputy Reichs Press Chief Sundermann in announcing that "all disturbing elements have been eliminated," added in the same breath, "and will still be eliminated," suggesting that the "small clique of generals and colonels" charged with attempting the coup might still be a threat to Nazi power.

The German military radio said that Battalion Major Remer, commander of a Berlin guard forming a part of the "Gross Deutschland" division, had received orders yesterday to occupy with his men the government quarters in Berlin, but that he had short-circuited the attempt by going straight to Goebbels.

The orders received by Maj. Remer stated that "the Fuehrer has met with a fatal accident," this account said. The orders said further: "Disorders in the Reich are reported. The executive power has passed into the hands of the Wehrmacht."

500 votes to Truman's credit.

South Carolina upped the ante by 18.

Chairman Hannegan yelled toward Mayor Edward Kelly of Chicago, a potent figure in the big Illinois delegation:

"That's all we need. Come on in."

Illinois caucused and changed its 58 votes from Senator Scott Lucas to Truman.

And away went the Truman drive. It hadn't needed the encouragement, and there really was nothing left for the workers to do as the various states, which a short time ago had been fighting over a nominee, fought gleefully and loyally to hop aboard the bandwagon.

Once the bandwagon started rolling for Truman, so many states sought to change their votes that official tally clerks could not keep up with the switches. As a result, the official announcement of the second ballot accounted for the total convention vote of 1,176, but left out Tennessee's 26 which remained to the end for Gov. Prentice Cooper of that state.

Officials gave up trying to correct the mistakes until a complete check could be made. The 26 would have to be subtracted from votes announced as going to Truman or Wallace.

and south of Sokal and were in possession of Rawa Ruska. They were expected to join Rokossovsky's forces farther north for an advance on Lublin.

The major crossings of the Bug were described by Moscow dispatches as a spectacular undertaking, in which fishermen and farmers from many miles around volunteered to help thousands of engineers connect the pre-fabricated bridges.

Overhead, warplanes of every description kept the Germans from interfering, while Soviet artillery hurled a thunderous fire in the enemy and Soviet tanks, ranging from the light cruiser models to massive "KV," rumbled out across the newly-built bridges.

The Russian infantry, which had slogged through the mud to reach the eastern banks, dashed out dry-shod across the big stream and slashed into the Germans on the western side almost without pause.

The principal area of the crossings appeared to be between Opalin and Sokal, a 60-mile stretch, at distances of 120 to 170 miles southeast of Warsaw.

The whole situation in the Baltic area, however, was one of increasing gravity for the Germans. Three Russian armies of the Baltic front were bearing down like machines through northern Lithuania and towards southern Latvia, arriving within 85 miles of Riga, the port whose capture would cut off all Germans to the north.

The Moscow press already was heralding the coming redemption of the three states that became Soviet Socialist republics in 1940.

parative handful of 2,000 prisoners is testimony to his defensive success.

Captured enemy gun crews reported British counter-fire was so deadly that "our mortar gunners never fire more than five rounds from the same position."

FLEET POUNDS JAP BASE AT CLOSE RANGE

say how deeply the Yanks have moved inland and since the landing areas still have not been designated it is impossible to speculate.

However, the communique wording the "troops advancing inland" indicates a considerable penetration. These units undoubtedly were supported by tanks, anti-tank guns and possibly mobile artillery.

A fleet spokesman, however, said "All landings were effected in all areas as programmed." This suggested Guam's defenses had been more thoroughly neutralized by 17 days of unprecedented bombing and shelling than on bloody Saipan, 125 miles northward, where many Americans fell on the beaches.

As the ground forces swept over Guam's shores, battleships and other units of Adm. Raymond A. Spruance's mighty Fifth fleet hammered the enemy defenses at close range.

Overhead, hundreds of carrier planes of the speedy task force commanded by Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher flew in coordinated support, bombing and strafing every target in sight.

Thus for the second time within five weeks American Marines and infantry had knifed their way into Japan's inner island defenses—the Marianas. The invasion came less than two weeks after organized resistance ended on Saipan; only a week after Nimitz said his forces would capitalize on Saipan "with all means available."

Fine Anchorage Available

In command of the amphibious thrust was Rear Adm. Richard L. Conolly, a veteran of many invasions, including Sicily and Salerno in the Italian campaign and the Gilberts and Marshalls in the central Pacific.

A veteran of Guadalcanal and Bougainville—Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger of the Marine Corps—commanded all expeditionary forces.

Guam, with its excellent Apra harbor on the western side, will afford anchorage and base facilities not possible on Saipan. It will be a potential springboard for further thrusts westward into the Philippines, 1,500 miles away, or to the China coast. It will strengthen Saipan, site of air bases from which Super Fortress raids can be made on Japan.

The most devastating air and sea bombardment of the Pacific war preceded the incursion of Guam. For 17 consecutive days every military target on the island was plastered with bombs by carrier planes.

On nine days warships of the Fifth fleet shelled the island. Modern battleships joined in the final softening-up, blasting the island for five days running.

Guam, site of an American naval station in pre-war days, is a rugged island similar to Saipan.

The island is 32 miles long and four to ten miles wide. It fell Dec. 10, 1941, when an overwhelming force of Japanese overran its tiny garrison.

ly held their British New Guinea jungle lines after sharply repulsing a Japanese night probing attack, headquarters announced today.

The assault was made Wednesday night and Thursday morning in the foothills of the Torricelli Mountains. This is the southern end of the American line along the Drinlorum river, 21 miles east of Altipa.

The attack followed a series of probing efforts to outflank the main lines in this rugged country. One hundred and five more Japanese were reported killed bringing the known Nipponese dead to 1,474 since their effort to escape the Allied trap began July 10.

Australian cruisers and destroyers and American P-T boats bombarded Japanese concentrations in the Harech river area, eight miles east of the Drinlorum.

Meanwhile, Mitchell bombers Thursday sank a 1,000-ton oil ship, three coastal vessels and four barges near Timor Island and Sorong, at the western tip of Dutch New Guinea.

A Japanese reconnaissance plane was shot down over Darwin, Australia, Thursday, the first reported enemy flight over this area in weeks.

Liberators smashed the Japanese base at Manokwari, Dutch New Guinea, with 60 tons of bombs. Other heavy bombers raided Yap in the western Carolines Wednesday, unloading 36 tons of explosives. One Liberator was lost. Two of 18 interceptors were destroyed.

ZEPPLIN WORKS GONE

New York, July 21 (AP)—The German Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen, for many years the birthplace of dirigibles, has "disappeared" as a result of yesterday's Allied bombing, the Swiss newspaper Basler Nachrichten, reported to the OWI, said today.

A 150-pound motorcycle which can be dropped from a plane on a standard parachute has been developed.

BLAME SHIFTED IN GRAFT CASE

Solons Claim Hemans Called Them To Washington

Mason, Mich., July 21 (AP) — Two defendant legislators in the graft conspiracy trial sought in testimony today to shift to the shoulders of Maj. Charles F. Hemans, a key state witness, the responsibility for conferences the trio held in Washington and Baltimore, Md., to discuss progress of a grand jury which ultimately accused all three of them of wrong-doing.

Hemans has been granted immunity from prosecution in exchange for his testimony that he paid bribes to legislators including the two who testified today, Senator Leo J. Wilkowski and Representative Francis J. Nowak, Detroit Democrats. He has testified that their two visits to him were their idea, and that they quizzed him about whether he would tell the grand jury the truth.

Both legislators testified they went to Washington, where Hemans then was on duty with the army, in response to his telephoned request, and that there he questioned them about the grand jury and denied to them that he ever had bribed any legislator.

Wilkowski and Nowak both insisted that Hemans told them that his assistant, Joseph C. Roosevelt, attempted to work a "shakedown" racket on Hemans by telling him of bribes and promised bribes to legislators. Hemans, the two defendant-lawmakers testified, told them he had investigated and "found that Mr. Roosevelt was just trying to obtain more money from him" and that as a result Roosevelt was fired as the lobbyist's aide.
